About Natural Resource Economics and Management

The Papua New Guinea National Research Institute (PNGNRI) Advanced Certificate in Natural Resource Economics and Management (NREM) is four weeks intensive course. It has been developed for people who are interested in enriching their knowledge and understanding of policies and mechanisms that can be used to enhance effectiveness and sustainability in the management of natural resources.

The NREM course program consists of the following modules:

- Economics concepts applied to natural resources.
- Management of renewable resources such as forestry, agriculture and fishery.
- Management of non-renewable resources such as minerals, petroleum and natural gas.
- Valuation of natural resources.
- Sustainable development and resource use conflicts.

The NREM course will be taught primarily by PNGNRI researchers that have vast experience in both teaching and policies associated with natural resources.

Who should attend?

- Policy analysts, consultants and researchers; or
- Administrators, managers and bureaucrats; or
- Graduates who have interest in research on problems associated with natural resources.
