About Social Science Research Methods

The Papua New Guinea National Research Institute (PNG NRI) Advanced Certificate in Social Science Research Methods (SSRM) is three weeks intensive course. It has been developed for people who are interested in enriching their knowledge and understanding of research design, data collection and data analytical methods.

The SSRM course program consists of the following modules:

- Planning of social science research.
- Qualitative research methods in theory and in practice.
- Quantitative research methods in theory and in practice.

The SSRM course will be taught by PNG NRI researchers that have vast experience in both teaching and practicing research methods.

Who should attend?

- Policy analysts, consultants and researchers; or
- Administrators, managers and bureaucrats; or
- Graduates who have interest in research or aspiring to proceed for further studies.

Admission Requirements

Bachelors degree or Diploma or equivalent in any of the social science disciplines/subjects. However, individuals from other fields of study such as natural and physical sciences who have interest in social science research methods will be considered.
